Investment Objective

The Series has a primary objective of providing current income and income growth, and a secondary objective of providing long-term capital appreciation.

Under normal circumstances, at least 80% of the portfolio will be invested in equity securities. The Series invests primarily in income producing-equity securities. Holdings may consist of U.S. and non-U.S. securities, including those in emerging markets. The Series may be invested in securities of small, large, or mid-size companies.

A "bottom-up" investment strategy focusing on individual security selection is used to identify companies that have the potential to provide a growing level of dividend income going forward, that are trading at a meaningful discount from their intrinsic value, and/or that are expected to be beneficiaries of special situations.

May be Appropriate for Investors:

- Who have a focus on income generation
- Who generally have the time to withstand market volatility

A Word About Risk

All investments involve risks, including possible loss of principal. As with any stock fund, the value of your investment will fluctuate in response to stock market movements. Investing in the Series will also involve a number of other risks, including issuer-specific risk, small-cap/mid-cap risk, foreign investment risk, and the risk that the investment approach may not be successful. Additionally, like all derivatives, investments in options can be highly volatile and involve risks in addition to the risks of the underlying instrument on which the derivative is based, such as counterparty, correlation and liquidity risk.

Investments will change over time. Top Ten Investments list is unaudited and excludes cash. The Global Industry Classification Standard (GICS) was developed by and is the exclusive property and a service mark of MSCI Inc. (MSCI) and Standard & Poor's, a division of The McGraw-Hill Companies, Inc. (S&P) and is licensed for use by Manning & Napier when referencing GICS sectors. Neither MSCI, S&P nor any third party involved in making or compiling the GICS or any GICS classifications makes any express or implied warranties or representations with respect to such standard or classification nor shall any such party have any liability therefrom. The "Other" category contains securities such as ETFs and others that cannot otherwise be classified.

Stocks of small- and mid-cap companies may be subject to more abrupt or erratic market movements than the stocks of larger companies and may be less marketable than the stocks of larger companies. In addition, they may have limited product lines, markets, or financial resources, and they may depend on a small management group. As a result, they fail more often than larger companies. Funds that invest in foreign countries may be subject to the risks of adverse changes in foreign economic, political, regulatory and other conditions as well as risks related to the use of different financial standards. Investments in emerging markets may be more volatile than investments in more developed markets. The Equity Income Series invests primarily in income-producing equity securities. There is no assurance or guarantee that companies which issue dividends will declare, continue to pay, or increase dividends. Additionally, the Series may invest a portion of its assets in real estate investment trusts (REITs). Investments in real estate, including REITs, are subject to risks associated with the direct ownership of real estate: interest rate risk, liquidity risk, and changes in property value, among others. The Equity Income Series may also invest a portion of its assets in business development companies (BDCs) or master limited partnerships (MLPs). BDCs are subject to additional risks, as they generally invest in less mature private companies or thinly traded U.S. public companies which involve greater risk than well-established publicly-traded companies. MLPs are subject to additional risks, including risks associated with the specific industry or industries in which the partnership invests, such as the risks of investing in real estate, or oil and gas industries or other natural resources. To the extent that an MLP's interests are all in a particular industry, the MLP will be negatively impacted by economic events adversely impacting that industry. Additionally, the potential tax benefits from investing in MLPs depend on their continued treatment as partnerships for federal income tax purposes.
